PART II

WHY didn't Lon Nolians assassinate Prince Norodom Sihanouk like the murder of Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem in the 1963 coup, which was backed by the CIA?

No CIA, KGB, and many others, many... WHY didn't Lon Nolians assassinate Prince Norodom Sihanouk like the murder of Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem in the 1963 coup, which was backed by the CIA? No CIA, KGB, and many others, many of whom were not living inside Prince Norodom Sihanouk's and Lon Nol's bodies and minds. If they were living in these two aristocrats' bodies and minds, who might have known what Prince Norodom Sihanouk and Lon Nol had secret talks between two of them. When Samdech Euv could not control his country because it was completely already besieged by Vietcong who had been waiting patiently for a right time to have dragged unfortunate and present tiny Cambodia into the flame of war from 1970 to 1975, it was the right time for all Vietcong who came out legally of Cambodian jungles everywhere to incite bitterly all Khmer peasants to hate Khmer Lon Nolians. The people in the outside world who only knew that Cambodians killing Cambodians in civil war, but in fact, Vietcong's hands were everywhere in Cambodia mysteriously instigating Khmers to hate Khmers who killed Khmers madly in the name of men-in-black or Khmer Rouge:

Samdech Sihanouk left for Paris for a treatment was because he who had a big guilty relation letting the North Vietnamese troops who had bases on the lands of Cambodia. That's why he had to retreat for a while in order to giving Lon Nol a time to force the Yuon Communist troops out, and then Samdech Sihanouk would return to Cambodia. And he, who would be freed from all accusations, had another new name that "The Father of Forcing Vietcong" "out of Cambodia."

But it was already too late, Cambodia was already besieged by Vietcong everywhere in the jungles, the flood also rose up onto the roofs of Cambodian people, no one could prevent a man-made disaster. Vietcong and the North Vietnamese leaders who are more intelligent than the leaders of Chinese, French, Japanese and Americans who disgracefully were defeated in Vietnam War that had brought only shamefulness and bodies back to their country each.

Prince Norodom Sihanouk already knew what would happen to his country and his unfortunate Khmer people when he joined with Vietcong in the guerrilla war against Lon Nolians, because one of survivors, whose nephew used to working for Prince Norodom Sihanouk, clearly told his uncle, named "Savorn". And Savorn who used to work for Prince Norodom Sihanouk, drank holy water of allegiant oath by telling him: "Khan, in the future, if you want to live, whatever you do, you must pretend to be deaf and blind..." Prince Norodom Sihanouk secretly continued to tell his loyal supporters before the coup during drinking holy water of loyal oath, "If our secrecy is leaked to the outside, you must be killed on the spot!"

When he left Phnom Penh for rest and medical treatment in France, in January 1970, he was little more than a political figurehead.

For their part, the rebels marched the army's savagery with attacks on civilian targets, with innocent bus passengers massacred to reinforce warning against cooperating with government troops.

Although indigenous Cambodian communists played a vital part in inciting resistance in widely scattered areas of the kingdom. It remains unclear whether the central committee of the communist party of Kampuchea, secretly based among the hill people of the northeast, was the controlling force in the insurgency or whether local leaders determined the extent to which resistance waxed or waned in particular regions.

By 1969 there were tens of thousands of Vietnamese communist troops sheltering inside Cambodia. Justifying himself, the prince frequently quoted a proverb common to many Asian societies: 'When elephants fight, ants should stand aside'. He was powerless to prevent the Vietnamese from crossing into Cambodia and using its territory, so acquiescence seemed the better choice.

Why did Lon Nol stage a coup against Prince Norodom Sihanouk's Sangkum Reastre Niyum regime in 1970? When Prince Norodom Sihanouk and his tiny Cambodia were completely besieged by all Vietcong who had been waiting patiently for a long time hiding in Cambodia, after Hanoi leaders tactfully bullshitted to the world that they had withdrawn their troops from Cambodia in 1954. Samdech Euv pretended to go to have a rest in France, but in fact, he was out of control with Vietcong everywhere in Cambodia. He could not tell them to get out of his tiny Cambodia as a man. Prince Sihanouk secretly told Lon Nol to have staged a coup against him because American, Thai and Yuon leaders who wanted to assassinate him by dragging Cambodia into the inevitable disaster. Their aims were to slice Cambodia up into two pieces.
